Building a brighter future through education

www.kennlockhartscholarship.org

KENNETH B. LOCKHART, FCSI, was an architect working with Frank Lloyd Wright and the Taliesin Associated Architects—a relationship that lasted 40 years. Kenn was involved in the construction of many of Mr. Wright's designs, and after Mr. Wright's death, Kenn took up the responsibility of writing specifications for the Fellowship.

In addition to his specifier duties, Kenn was closely involved in the firm's education of apprentices and architects to help them better understand construction documents.

“Poor is the pupil who does not surpass his master.”

The Kenn Lockhart CSI Scholarship Foundation is a non-profit corporation established in January 2007 by the Phoenix Chapter of the Construction Specifications Institute (CSI) to promote education in the field of architecture, engineering for building projects, landscape architecture, interior design, and construction science and technology – including construction management. The Foundation's objective is to promote future advancement of the construction industry through education by providing undergraduate scholarships to deserving students in these fields of study.

Selection is based upon the following criteria:

- Scholarships may be awarded to a student with a minimum of two years of college credit completed toward a four-year and above degree and at least one year remaining to complete their professional degree.
- Student must be a resident of Arizona and be enrolled in an accredited college in the State of Arizona.
- Student must be majoring in architecture, engineering for building projects, landscape architecture, interior design, or construction science and technology – including construction management.
- Student must have shown a special skill and advancement in the areas of architecture, engineering for building projects, landscape architecture, interior design, or construction science and technology—including construction management.
- Financial need is not a criterion.
- Student must have a grade average of not less than 2.5 in a grading scale of 4.0.
